ABOUT MAC ORIGIN

MAC Origin is a precision manufacturing company in Bingen, Washington, producing components for aerospace, defense, and other industrial applications. Our work depends on accuracy, consistent quality, teamwork, and a commitment to meeting customer requirements.

POSITION SUMMARY

The Manufacturing Technician supports daily production by operating manufacturing equipment, preparing and handling components, performing in-process checks, and helping ensure parts meet engineering drawings and quality requirements. This role is well suited to someone with mechanical aptitude, attention to detail, a safety-first mindset, and an interest in precision manufacturing.

KEY RESPONSIBILITIES

- Support production activities and operate assigned equipment after appropriate training.
- Read and follow work instructions, engineering drawings, and applicable specifications.
- Use precision measuring tools to verify dimensions and identify potential quality issues.
- Perform basic assembly, deburring, cleaning, material handling, and other production tasks as assigned.
- Maintain accurate production and inspection records.
- Keep the work area organized and follow established safety and quality procedures.
- Communicate production issues, nonconforming parts, and equipment concerns to the appropriate team member.

QUALIFICATIONS

- Mechanical aptitude and a strong attention to detail.
- Ability to follow written and verbal instructions and work effectively with a team.
- Willingness to learn manufacturing processes, equipment, and inspection methods.
- Ability to use or learn precision measuring tools such as calipers and micrometers.
- Prior manufacturing or machine-shop experience is preferred but may not be required, depending on the candidate.
